CONGRATULATIONS!

DR CHELSEA GARDNER

The Department of History and Classics are very pleased to announce Dr Chelsea Gardner's appointment as one of the three inaugural Evans Teaching and Learning Scholars, who will hold their positions for a three-year term. Her outstanding project is outlined below:

Innovative Pedagogies, Experiential Learning, and the Acadia Experience

The objective of the activities for this project is to introduce authentic, experiential classroom activities into undergraduate courses at Acadia. These activities will be implemented at various levels (course, department, faculty, university-wide), and are all designed to challenge traditional methods of teaching and learning, in order to create a more fulsome classroom environment with engaged learners, and to encourage faculty, as educators, to move beyond dated assessment methods that are themselves increasingly at risk of becoming redundant with the increased prevalence of robust AI technologies.
