

HIST 3423

Race and Class in 20th Century Africa

Racial and tribal categories informed political policies during the colonial era, yet as a result of changes brought about by colonial economies, new social and political groups and strategies emerged. The course will trace this important process and seek an understanding of its cultural and political consequences through a study of racial policy in Africa.
