Comeau, Louis V. Images of our Past: Historic Kentville. Halifax: Nimbus Publishing, 2003.

This is one of the books that I used to gain some insight into what Kentville's streets once looked like, so that I would have some context for the interviewee's various opinions on Kentville's "decline."

Ness, Gary W. Images of our Past: The Dominion Atlantic Railway, 1894-1994. Halifax: Nimbus Publishing, 2014.

I used this book to learn some things about the Dominion Atlantic Railway and its impact on Kentville. I also took a few different images of both coal and diesel trains from this book.

Nichols, Mabel G. Devil's Half Acre: A Look at Kentville's History, Second Edition. Kingston: T&S Office Essentials and Printing, 2011.

This is the second book that I used to gain some insight into what Kentville's streets once looked like, so that I would have some context for the interviewee's various opinions on Kentville's "decline."

The Students of HIST 1003, "The Practicing Historian," Fall 2018. An Oral History of Kentville as told by Fifteen Voices, Volume 1. Wolfville: Dept. of History and Classics at Acadia University, 2019.

This was the primary source base for my project. From these interviews I was able to learn about the interviewee's thoughts on Kentville's development over time and extract the common themes throughout, which I then compiled into the short video for the library display.
